JUDITH ALLER grew up in the midst of Hollywood's classical music golden era and her father, pianist Victor Aller, was in charge of music at Warner Brothers Studio. Ms. Aller started taking lessons on the violin at seven, and as a teenager studied with Jascha Heifetz in his master class at the University of Southern California. After three years with Heifetz and following an impressive American debut tour, Aller relocated to Finland, residing first in Helsinki and subsequently in Pori. She toured Europe in recital and with the Pori Symphony Orchestra, in which she performed as soloist and served as concertmaster and assistant conductor. From Helsinki she toured with the Finnish Radio Symphony, made many recordings for Finnish Radio, and taught at the famous Sibelius Academy (www.judithaller.com).
